THE ANKLE-WATCH

When Carrie wears the ankle-watch,
Dame Fashion's new conceit,
A golden timepiece in a band
Of leather trim and neat,
Clasped close about her shapely limb
Encased in silken hose,
She'll make her dresses shorter yet
To show it I suppose.

When Carrie wears the ankle-watch,
(Which she is bound to do)
She'll find a lot of rubbernecks
Along the avenue;
And every blessed beau, behold!
That round her fondly tarries,
Will leave his watch at home so he
Can learn the time from Carrie's.

A. J. Drexell, praising the English volunteer army, said in New York the other day:

"Oxford and Cambridge undergraduates fight side by side with coal miners. Peers' sons and millionaires' sons hobnob with plumbers and blacksmiths in the ranks.

"There are lots of 'nuts' (dudes) in the volunteer army—and the kaiser finds them pretty hard to crack, too—notwithstanding their lack of shells."
